Teachscape Provides Sneak Peak of 'Teachscape XL' Content

SAN FRANCISCO, September 8th, 2008 – Instructional coaches, leaders and teachers can now enjoy free online professional development modules by participating in Teachscape's Module of the Month (M.O.M.) club. Each month Teachscape makes available one or more courses found within the company's new online professional development platform Teachscape XL. Registration for the M.O.M. club is free and can be found at www.teachscape.com/xl.

Each monthly module is full of classroom video and exceptional content such as English Language Development at High School (November), Book Review: Speech to Print and Book Review: Overcoming Dyslexia (December), M.O.M. Club members will receive an email on the first of the month announcing the newly selected online course and how to access it via a Teachscape provided free username and password.

Teachscape XL, the provider of the Module of the Month Club, takes high-quality online teacher professional development resources and makes every element of those resources—the text, the videos, the interactive elements—individual items in a massive, searchable training library. Coaches, teachers and instructional leaders can reassemble those items with ease or create new resources of their own. These combined features make Teachscape XL the most powerful coaching and professional development tool available today.
